Data Protection Commission
21 Fitzwilliam Square South
Dublin 2, Ireland

Background

1. On 7 December 2021, [REDACTED] (“the Data Subject”) lodged a complaint pursuant to Article 77 GDPR with the Data Protection Commission (“the DPC”) concerning LinkedIn Ireland UC (“the Respondent”).
2. The DPC was deemed to be the competent authority for the purpose of Article 56(1) GDPR.

The Complaint

3. The details of the complaint were as follows:
 - a. The Data Subject had created a LinkedIn account under a false identity some ten years ago. The Data Subject subsequently decided that they wanted to use their account under their real name and changed the details on the account to reflect this. This change in the account’s credentials resulted in the Respondent suspending the account for an infringement of its policies against fake accounts as set out in its User Agreement.
 - b. The Data Subject contacted the Respondent requesting access to their personal data following the suspension of their account.
 - c. The Respondent refused to provide the requested data.

Action taken by the DPC

4. The DPC, pursuant to Section 109(4) of the Data Protection Act, 2018 (“the 2018 Act”), is required, as a preliminary matter, to assess the likelihood of the parties to the complaint reaching, within a reasonable time, an amicable resolution of the subject-matter of the complaint. Where the DPC considers that there is a reasonable likelihood of such an amicable resolution being concluded between the parties, it is empowered, by Section 109(2) of the 2018 Act, to take such steps as it considers appropriate to arrange or facilitate such an amicable resolution.
5. Following a preliminary examination of the material referred to it by the Data Subject, the DPC considered that there was a reasonable likelihood of the parties concerned reaching, within a reasonable time, an amicable resolution of the subject matter of the complaint. The DPC’s experience is that complaints of this nature are particularly suitable for amicable resolution in circumstances where there is an obvious solution to the dispute, if the respondent is willing to engage in the process. In this regard, the DPC had regard to:
 - a. The relationship between the Data Subject and Respondent being, in this case, an individual consumer and a service provider; and
 - b. The nature of the complaint in this case, an unsuccessful attempt by the Data Subject to exercise their data subject rights.

6. While not relevant to the assessment that the DPC is required to carry out pursuant to Section 109(4) of the 2018 Act, the DPC also had regard to EDPB Guidelines 06/2022 on the practical implementation of amicable settlements Version 2.0, adopted on 12 May 2022 (“Document 06/2022”), and considered that:
 - a. the possible conclusion of the complaint by way of amicable resolution would not hamper the ability of the supervisory authorities to maintain the high level of protection that the GDPR seeks to create; and that
 - b. such a conclusion, in this case, would likely carry advantages for the Data Subject, whose rights under the GDPR would be vindicated swiftly, as well as for the controller, who would be provided the opportunity to bring its behaviour into compliance with the GDPR.

Amicable Resolution

7. The DPC engaged with both the Data Subject and Respondent in relation to the subject-matter of the complaint. Further to that engagement, the Respondent explained that the creation of an account under a false identity constituted a violation of its User Agreement. The Respondent further explained that, because the account had been created under a false identity, it was unable to verify the true identity of the account holder, despite the fact that the Data Subject had provided it with ID for these purposes.
8. Following further exchanges between the DPC, the Data Subject and the Respondent, the Respondent agreed to verify the Data Subject’s ownership of the account by way of the Data Subject emailing its Data Protection Officer directly at a designated email address and using the e-mail address associated with the Data Subject’s account. The Data Subject completed verification in this manner and, on 31 August 2022, the requested personal data was provided to them in full by the Respondent.
9. On 24 November 2022, and having received confirmation that the requested personal data had been provided to the Data Subject in full, the DPC wrote to the Data Subject noting that, in the circumstances, the dispute between the Data Subject and Respondent appeared to have been resolved. As such, the DPC asked the Data Subject to notify it, within two weeks, if they were not satisfied with the outcome, so that the DPC could take further action. The DPC did not receive any further communication from the Data Subject and, accordingly, the complaint has been deemed to have been amicably resolved.
10. In circumstances where the subject-matter of the complaint has been amicably resolved, in full, the complaint, by virtue of Section 109(3) of the 2018 Act, is deemed to have been withdrawn by the Data Subject.

Confirmation of Outcome

11. For the purpose of Document 06/2022, the DPC confirms that:

- a. The complaint, in its entirety, has been amicably resolved between the parties concerned;
- b. The agreed resolution is such that the object of the complaint no longer exists; and
- c. Having consulted with the supervisory authorities concerned on the information set out above, as required by Document 06/2022 the DPC has now closed off its file in this matter.

12. If dissatisfied with the outcome recorded herein, the parties have the right to an effective remedy by way of an application for judicial review, by the Irish High Court, of the process applied by the DPC in the context of the within complaint.
